Lindau

Welcome to the Lake Constance Gardens

For centuries, hard-working gardeners have been sowing, planting and weeding at Lake Constance. From the castle grounds to the cottage garden, today there is row upon row of charming green oases spread across the Lake Constance. The parks and gardens allow their visitors to take an exciting journey through the epochs of garden culture – from the Stone Age to the present day, interspersed with some magnificent views of the lake.

2 | D-Reichenau Island

Almost 1,200 years ago, a monk from Reichenau, Walahfrid Strabo, wrote the first garden guide in Europe under the pseudonym of 'Hortulus'. In it he describes 24 medicinal plants and explains how they can be used. Today it is primarily tomatoes, cucumbers etc. that grow on the 'Vegetable Island', but in the former cloister garden an old-fashioned herb garden shows plants from Hortulus's guide.

3 | D/CH-Unlimited Garden Rendezvous

From the enchanted tree garden to the magnificent castle park, the German-Swiss side of Lake Constance offers a heavenly diversity of rural horticulture. At the 'Unlimited Garden Rendezvous', viewing gardens and park grounds invite you to visit. Many private people host guests in their own personal green havens. Tours, hikes and cultural events on the topic of horticulture complete the offer.

4 | D-Garden Culture Path Überlingen

The Überlingen garden culture path connects to about four kilometers the most beautiful green sights of the city with each other. Botanical highlight of the consistently signposted way is the city garden. In shady arbours you can here amidst exotic plants and mighty tree giants listen to the lapping of the fountain or the imposing cactus free sounding marvel.

7 | D-Meersburg New Palace

The baroque garden impresses with its great panoramic views on Lake Constance. He goes to the design Christoph Gessingers of 1712 back, who designed the plant in the French style had laid out on two terraces. He is an excellent example for that, a pleasure garden within a cramped space to design. The garden pavilion on the lower terrace is in the frame accessible by special guides.
